

LEO XIII IS DEAD

An Official Announcement Comes From Rome This Afternoon To President and State Dept.

HE DIED AT 3:50

The Cardinals Were Summoned To The Vatican At Noon And Have Been There Ever Since.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.) Washington, July 20.—The following cablegram dispatched at one fifteen this afternoon: "To Cardinal Rampolla, Rome. The President desires me to express his profound sense of the loss, which the Christian world has sustained in the death of his holiness, Leo XIII. By his lofty character, his great learning, and his comprehensive charity, he adorned his exalted station and made death through the Steffnal official agency.

Pope Is Down

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.) Rome, July 20, 2:10.—The government has just announced that a telegraph pole has fallen and there will be a delay in sending messages for some time. Means of getting ready to place an embargo on all telegrams is being prepared as the Pope's end several promotions in the church, finally to the bishop of Perugia. He was also appointed to a position of all but the very highest importance—he was made nuncio to Brussels.

Established Schools

He remained as bishop in Perugia, Italy, for over thirty-two years. During this time he established colleges, schools, hospitals, and all manner of charitable associations. He also did much to beautify the picturesque Italian city which was his home for so many years.

Pope Leo was especially fond of classic studies in his younger days and wrote many Latin verses.

Made Cardinal

Before 1877 Leo was made cardinal and in that year was nominated by Pope Pius to the commanding and dignified office of Cardinal Camerlingo of the Roman church. It was in that capacity, that, on the death of Pope Pius, he was called upon to act as head of the church for temporal and monetary purposes, and he superintended the arrangements for the conclave which ended in his elevation to the papal throne.

Worked in a New World

Justin McCarthy, in his Public Men of Today, says "A whole era closed with the death of Pope Pius the Ninth, and Leo the Thirteenth had what might almost be called the materials of a new world under his control, free to construct and reconstruct as his statesmanship, and his principles, and his religion might guide him."

He was not a man to waste any time in trying to fight against inevitable conditions. These he accepted and set himself to make the best he could for his cause and for his church. How he did this may best be seen in his twenty-six years as its head.

Patelli has said: "Nor will America throughout its length and breadth withhold its tribute of loyal and generous esteem, veneration and gratitude to Pope Leo for those acts of his pontificate which have at various times been promulgated and by which he has shown his confidence and hope in the grand future of this mighty nation."

Attendants Await Death.

The doctors and attendants of the dying pontiff speak in whispers and move noiselessly about, so that from the sickroom no sound comes except the heavy breathing of the unconscious pope or his occasional cries for Pio Centra and Dr. Lippont. His tone is one of fear, as though he felt himself abandoned.

"In reality sleep is far from all eyes, in the Vatican. No matter at what hour, death comes the whole palace will spring into sudden life.

Reporters Are Alert.

In the piazza of St. Peter's, on the contrary, all is movement, there being a regular encampment of journalists before the famous bronze doors, which are now closed in their faces and behind which the regular tramp of the Swiss guards can be heard. Many eyes are glued to the window in the pope's chamber, overlooking the piazza, while the nearby cafes, especially those with telephones, are crowded. Bicycles ready for use are piled up outside them and cabs are lingering about in the hope of catching a fare.

The Osservatore Romano, the chief vatican organ, has received orders to hold itself in readiness to issue almost at a moment's notice a special edition. The only thing wanting to complete the paper is the hour of Pope Leo's death.

Heart Is Strong.

At midnight Pope Leo lay in a state of coma and there were grave doubts in the minds of his doctors whether he would ever completely emerge from it. His immediate dissolution seemed to be averted only by the reliability of the action of his heart. His pulse, though weak, continued steadily.

"The pope is in a state of coma, which may be called a condition preceding the last agony," said Dr. Lippont shortly before midnight, "the duration of which it is impossible to forecast, although everything leads to the belief that this condition cannot last. To be more exact, he is still in a state of torpor and stupor, from which, however, he rouses occasionally when he hears sharp sounds as, for instance, the insistent voice of one of his familiars calling loudly to him. Left alone he relapses immediately into a condition of torpor."

Sleep Is Restless.

"At intervals he murmurs in his sleep, continuing to have forebodings that he is being abandoned by his valet Centra and myself. These are the symptoms of incipient cerebral anaemia and general exhaustion. "He can no longer turn in his bed without assistance, and is being kept alive by artificial stimulants."

Monsignore Bissotti, master of the pope's chamber, said earlier in the night that the pulse of his holiness had not shown any signs of becoming intermittent, so, despite his extreme weakness and coma, he believed the pope would survive the night and possibly another day.

Prepare for End.

By midnight both the Italian government and the authorities of the vatican had made final preparations for the pope's death. The government was rigidly censoring all telegrams and telephonic communication between Italy and the rest of the continent. Few people remained at the vatican. Dr. Mazzoni and Dr. Rossoni and the cardinals had gone to their homes to await the last urgent summons.

THE NEXT POPE

Some of the Most Prominent Candidates For the Papal Throne

Nine Cardinals From Among Whom Leo's Successor May Be Chosen

Chances of James Cardinal Gibbons For the Seat of St. Peter

To hundreds of millions of Roman Catholics throughout the world the question of paramount interest is the selection of a successor to Pope Leo XIII. to rule on the throne of St. Peter. More than a quarter of a century has passed since the college of cardinals has been called upon to perform the important duty of choosing one of its number to preside over the destinies of the most powerful religious organization in Christendom, and of all the cardinals who took part in the conclave which elected Pope Leo but one is alive today—Cardinal Luigi Oreglia, dean of the sacred college and camerlingo of the Catholic church, the same office that was held by Leo at the time of his elevation.

While it is generally believed that the next pope will be chosen from among the Italian cardinals, it is of especial interest to Americans that Cardinal Gibbons, the only American member of the college, is considered not to be without a chance for succeeding to the pontifical throne.

That such an event is possible is explained by the fact that many members of the sacred college are said to favor a new policy for the church and the election of a foreigner as pope. Should this plan commend itself to the conclave and a change of policy be agreed on Cardinal Gibbons might be the selection. No opposition to him could be

To American Cardinal Satali, next to Cardinal Gibbons, is the best known of any member of the sacred college, for it was in this country, while serving as papal delegate, that he was elevated to the cardinalate and formally vested with the scarlet which marks the rank of a prince of the church. This ceremony took place in the Baltimore cathedral on Jan. 5, 1893, Cardinal Gibbons placing the red hat on his head.

Francis Satali, titular bishop of Lepanto and for years as close to Pope Leo XIII. as any member of the college, is a native of Perugia and even as a boy displayed gifts of oratory of a high order, and to this accomplishment he added great powers of original thought and marked facility as a writer. Satali is about sixty-two years old.

Cardinal Giuseppe Sarto, patriarch of Venice, who is regarded as a strong candidate for the papal throne, was born at Biadene, northern Italy, in 1835. He is noted for his prudence, having never meddled with politics, and for see of Frascati. Since then he has lived almost continually in Rome and has been one of the closest advisers of the pope. Vincenzo Vannutelli is two years younger than his more distinguished relative. He was created cardinal in 1880.

Another likely candidate for papal honors is Cardinal Rampolla, who is a Neapolitan and was born in 1843 at Polizzo. His family name is Mariano Rampolla del Tindaro, and he was educated in Rome. For some years he has been attached to the nunciature at Madrid and was created titular archbishop of St. Hieracles in 1882. He became a cardinal in 1887, taking title from the Church of St. Cecilia, and was made secretary of state in the same year. He is administrator of the property of the holy see and is one of the leading diplomats of the world.

Still another possible heir to the pontificate is Cardinal Gotti. Jerome Maria Gotti is a Genoese, the son of a dock laborer, and Pope Leo is said to have long favored him as his successor. Cardinal Gotti was born on March 29, 1834, and attended the Jesuit school, but at the age of sixteen was admitted as a novice into that most austere of Carmelite orders, the Order of Barefoot Carmelites. Upon reaching the priesthood he was assigned to the Church of St. Maria della Scala, and just before the death of Pius IX. he feared from any of the European governments, and no political complications would arise. It is said to be a fact that many of the cardinals think that the selection of Gibbons would happily solve many difficulties. North America has had but three cardinals—McCloskey, Taschereau (who are both dead) and Gibbons.

Official Announcement

Rome, July 20.—Pope Leo passed away this afternoon at three fifty-five o'clock. His end was peaceful. Life's spark flitted away like a feather before the winds' zephyr. Prior to his death the penitentiaries gathered about the bed, and recited prayer interceding for the soul passing, of the Christian. After his death the doctors waited some minutes, then applied the usual tests. Cardinal Rampolla, in the capacity perfect of the palace was then officially notified. He in turn informed Cardinal Oreglia and cardinal Camerlingo of the Holy See, who was conducted to the papal department. There he performed the last offices, striking the pope's head three times and calling his name. No answer, the cardinal then removed fisherman's ring.

James Cardinal Gibbons is one of the most popular and respected dignitaries of the Roman church. He was created a cardinal by Pope Leo on June 7, 1880, at the age of fifty-two. He is a native of Baltimore, but spent his boyhood in Ireland, where he received a liberal education. Returning to America he was graduated from the St. Charles college, Maryland, and was ordained a priest in 1861. He is known in Rome as the "democratic cardinal" from his extreme modesty and retirement.

He is frail in appearance, but endowed with tremendous vitality. As a scholar with a wide and intimate knowledge of men and affairs he has few peers and no superiors in the Roman college of cardinals.

But while the election of a foreigner as head of the church has been discussed, it is not considered more than a remote possibility, and those in the best position to know are confident that an Italian will be chosen. The Italian cardinals most prominently mentioned for elevation are Gotti, Satali, Svampa, the brothers Vannutelli, Sarto, Rampolla and Oreglia, with Capececiattro, Ferrata and Ferrati as remote possibilities. However, when a choice is finally made it may prove that none of these has been selected, and that extreme independence. He is also a patron of the arts.

The cardinal is recognized as one of the most learned men in the church and is a stickler for the truth as between the church and the people. Sarto won much renown some years ago by destroying certain relics of doubtful authenticity.

Cardinal Sarto was not discovered until he had reached middle age. He was a parish priest in the province of Venice for the greater part of his life and finally became a bishop. His high executive qualities and unexcelled learning became known soon after his elevation and were recognized by the church. He was created a cardinal in 1893, at which time he was also named patriarch of Venice.

One of the most striking figures of the group of men whose supreme ambition is to succeed to the papal throne is Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli. He is a power in the church by lineage as well as by education and achievement. He is descended from one of those old Roman families whose histories have been linked with the Roman Catholic church for centuries. His brother Vincenzo is also a member of the college of cardinals, although of lower rank, being only a cardinal priest. He was born in 1834.

Pope Leo created Vannutelli a cardinal bishop in 1887 and gave him the became head of the mother house of the Barefoot Carmelites, and in 1881 he was made superior general of that order.

Taking title from the Church of St. Maria del Scala, he was created cardinal in 1895. He is accounted the best authority on canon law in the sacred college, although his tastes are scientific. He is still a Barefoot Carmelite, but is not now superior general of the order.

Perhaps the most popular candidate in Italy for head of the church is Cardinal Domenico Svampa, archbishop of Bologna, and it is said that Leo himself believed at one time that Svampa would be his successor. He is one of the youngest members of the sacred college, being but fifty-two years old. Like Gotti, he is of humble parentage and has risen to high place in the church by force of personal ability. He was made archbishop of Bologna in 1892 and created cardinal two years later.

Cardinal Luigi Oreglia di Stefano, who is camerlingo or chamberlain of the Roman Catholic church, was born in 1828 and created cardinal by Pius IX. in 1873. He is dean of the college of cardinals, archchancellor of the Roman university, prefect of the congregation of ceremonies and a member of the curia.

It is remarked that according to the prophecies of St. Malachi the symbol of Pope Leo's successor will correspond to the words Ignis ardens (glowing fire). The escutcheon of Cardinal Oreglia and Gotti, which bear a bur-

SERMON AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

THE REV. RICHARD M. VAUGHAN PREACHES.

PROGRESS IN RELIGIOUS LIFE

Baptist Pastor Tells of Application of the Divine Rule of Evolution.

At the First Baptist church Sunday morning the Reverend R. M. Vaughan took the text for his sermon from Mark 4:28 "First the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear."

The supreme book is the bible. It lights up the path of life. It gives health and progress to society. How did its truth come into the world? The answer is in Jesus' words with respect to the method of the coming of the kingdom. Like the wheat fields of Galilee there was progression, blade, ear, grain.

It is in this way all truth comes. Men, races, generations each contribute a part. Thus, slowly progressing, the walls of the temple of truth rise. Trace the growth of astronomy from the crude ideas of the men of Shinar down through the great names of Ptolemy, Copernicus, Kepler, Galileo, Newton, to our time. And now the spectroscopic and stellar photography have revealed to us new wonders. Astrology, astronomy, astrophysics, these are the parallel of blade, ear, ripe grain.

In no other way can truth come. The human mind unfolds its powers gradually. Imagination is active long before the logical faculty. Truth can come to us no faster than we are able to appreciate it. Who walks with a child must measure his steps to the strength of the child. And according to the accepted educational theory the individual and the race develop along essentially the same lines. The race has its childhood, its adolescence, its maturity.

In the literature of every people poetry precedes prose. If the race itself is subject to progress then the revelation of divine truth must keep pace with the unfolding of our powers. And back of the bible lies a history. And history is a stream which enlarges as it flows. The rise and fall of nations taught prophetic men the ways and character of God. From the achievements, failures, heartbreaks, visions of men who lived in their own times, the truth broke with ever increasing clearness upon the world. The bible is the record of the revelation which came, the literature of an age-long, divinely directed historical movement. But if the divine truth has been borne to us on the ever-widening deepening stream of history then it has come progressively.

Two sayings of Jesus confirm us in our thought. He declared Moses accommodated his divorce legislation to the hardness of the hearts of the people. It was measured to their stage of culture and destined to be superseded by the teachings of Jesus. He "fulfilled" the law by filling up its partial excellence to the fullness of the ideal and the final, even as the light of the sun both completes and abolishes the light of the stars. The other saying—"I have yet many things to say unto you but ye cannot hear them now. Howbeit when he the Spirit of truth is come he will guide you into all truth."

How have we gained the truth about God? Progressively. The names, men have given Him mark in a general way their conceptions of Him. To Abraham he was El Shaddai, "the Almighty." The earliest thought of God concerns itself with power. To Moses He was Jehovah, "I Am." The present, personal covenant-keeping God. To Isaiah, he was the "Holy One of Israel," the emphasis is upon the ethical nature of God. To Jesus, and now we come to the perfect disclosure, the name in which all other names meet and blend, "Our Father."

The truth of redemption has come in the same way. At the first there was only the faint glimmer of the mysterious promise that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. But through long centuries the light grows brighter until the perfect radiance of the career of Jesus. Thus also have we learned with respect to the life to come. The "Sheol" of the early Old Testament is a place of dim and gloomy shadows. But hope increases through the years until at last we hear, "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth on me shall never die."

Have we reached the end? Is there further revelation of truth to come? Doubtless God speaks to men in all ages. The Spirit who guides into all truth is ever present with us. But all essential, fundamental truth is in the bible. In appreciation and application, in development of germinal ideas, we find the opportunity of infinite and endless progress. But the bible is to-day and ever will be the standard of faith and practice. The fact of a progressive revelation is the solvent of many difficulties. The old infidelity is dead. Robert Ingersoll has no successors. Why? Recognition of progress in revelation has made meaningless the old quibbles. The Old Testament ages must be judged by their own standards. Grain in the blade or ear may be green and bitter but it has the promise of the harvest and there can be no valid objection to the ripened grain. What are the doctrines of the bible? No answer is here which does not consider the whole sweep of biblical revelation. If you want a true and final idea of wheat and the ripened grain, not the ear but in the ripened grain, the personal attainment of truth must conform to the law of progress. By study and prayer by loyalty and open-mindedness by the doing of duty and the cycle of our human experience we walk the path which shines more and more into the perfect dawn.

WHITEWATER MAN SHOOT'S HIMSELF

J. Kizer Ends Life as Result of Financial Difficulties—Was a Saloon Keeper.

J. Kizer of Whitewater, a saloon keeper whose financial troubles had been weighing him down ended his life by shooting himself Saturday. Mr. Kizer was formerly a butcher, but later purchased a saloon, discontinuing the meat business. Some time ago, he was involved in a legal wrangle, over a financial matter, and in the end he had come out loser. This and other troubles were the probable cause of his action. He had a wife and two sons.

OLD SETTLER AT SEA IN THIS CITY

Colored Man Who Formerly Worked in Ford's Mill Revisited Janesville Last Week.

Lemuel Mandel one of the early settlers of Rock county was in the city last week on his way from Jackson county, Ia., to Waukesha. He was county Iowa to Waukesha. He was employed by O. B. Ford in the flour mill where he worked until the war. At that time he enlisted to aid in freeing his colored brothers for he was of the same dark skin. After the war he came back and tried farming, but he struck a section where the land was sandy and gave small return for his labor. He then sold out and went to Jackson county, Iowa, where he now resides. The Janesville of his time had disappeared, few land marks remaining. He looked in vain for the old Ford house now the Grand hotel, the old M. E. church, and other places which he had known. Mr. Mandel is well along in years, but does not show his age save in his white moustache. His hair is still black.

NO WAR IN THIS DECADE, AT LEAST

"Old Wife's" Saying as Regards the Birth of Girl Babies.

If the signs relied upon by the "old wives" amount to anything, the country has a long period of peace ahead of it. It is an old "sign" that when more boys than girls are born, a war is imminent, but when there is a marked preponderance of girl babies born in a season, a period of peace and prosperity is at hand. The normal birth rate shows a small percentage of female infants over male, but for some months past the preponderance of girl babies over boys has been so great as to attract attention of physicians and midwives and recall the old gossip's signs.

One prominent physician reports that of his last eighteen births in which he has assisted, fourteen of the infants were girls. Other physicians, without looking up the exact figures, agree that far more than a majority of the cases of confinement they have attended have resulted in the birth of girls. Whether there is anything in the old sign or not, it is certain that this is a great season for girl babies.

BIG TOBACCO EXHIBIT MADE

PLANS FOR MONSTER SHOWING AT FAIR.

MUCH LOCAL TOBACCO GOSSIP

News from the Tobacco Growers and Leaf Handlers in Janesville and Rock County.

The growth of the local tobacco crop this last week has been good. If the plants had been a little larger the growers say, considerable damage might have been done, as it was they were not hurt and although some fields show the plants to be leaning somewhat, they will all recover, the farmers think. So far the fields look clean for there has been plenty of time between rains, to get out and cultivate. The rain of last week flooded a few fields and in lower ground the ground is well soaked. A number of farmers out Milton avenue do not expect to get on their fields before next Tuesday from present conditions.

Except for the sales to Fisher and Fisher, business at the warehouses has continued quiet. The damage done to the Heddles tobacco tent was not so large as at first reported. It will not amount to over $600 according to S. B. Heddles.

At the Green warehouse some sorting is being done. Extensive repairs and improvements have been made on the Pearl street warehouse.

P. L. Erler is having some stripping done and drying.

The Grundy warehouse force is drying strip, and packing filler.

Tobacco at the Fair. Tobacco, an ocean of it, bearing a ship constructed wholly of the cheering weed, perched high on a massive globe also built of tobacco on the top of an ornate pagoda formed of tobacco, is intended to be the crowning feature of the tobacco exhibit at the Universal Exposition at St. Louis, says the Chicago Examiner.

It will be located in the palace of agriculture. Entirely under the roof of this palace, the largest of the exposition buildings, covering an area of nineteen acres, the special tobacco exhibit will occupy a space of 340 feet long and 52 feet wide. Aisles 20 feet wide on each side of the parallelogram will render the great industrial picture effective when seen from any point.

All Forms of Tobacco

Tobacco will be shown in its every form. There will be seed beds, with young plants just peeping above the soil; full grown plants, growing in miniature fields, a curing barn, with its appliances in operation, an exhibit of all the tools, machinery and appliances used in the culture of the weed, warehouses showing the processes of handling and storing the leaf tobacco, factories where plug tobacco is manufactured, other factories, crowded with pretty girls, turning out before the eyes of the visitors thousands of cigarettes still other factories where granular and plug cut smoking tobaccos fine cuts, and snuffs are made.

Twenty States Take Part. This comprehensive tobacco exhibit is in the direct charge of Thomas K. Bruner, superintendent of special exhibitions with Frederick W. Taylor chief of agriculture.

Twenty states, extensively engaged in tobacco culture, have collaborated in making the universal tobacco exhibit the greatest ever contemplated. Kentucky heads with her 314,000,000 pounds annually. North Carolina, comes next with 127,000,000 pounds, then Virginia with 122,000,000 pounds, Ohio with 65,000,000 pounds; Tennessee with 49,000,000 pounds; Wisconsin with 45,000,000 pounds and so on down the list.

The Forepaugh-Fish Wild West Shows which exhibit at Janesville, next Saturday at the show grounds, Spring Brook, Eastern avenue, contains more genuine novelties than any similar entertainment in existence, while it is the largest and most complete Wild West display now in America. It is the only show of its name to appear here.

Feature after feature crowd one another in the long program, which is made as varied as possible. Cowboys, including some of the greatest daredevil riders from the plains and ranches, twelve genuine cowboys, the demon riders from the steppes of Russia, and who represent the flower of the czar's crack regiments, forty Indians, in all their panoply of paint and feathers. Arabs, whirlwind riders, and acrobats of the desert. Cowgirls, Mexican vaqueros, and lariat throwers, United States cavalrymen and artillerymen with their cannon carriage and limber, English Dragoons, and a host of others are included in the arena performers.

These take part in a number of acts that defy description and represent the very essence of daredevil romantic and picturesque hardihood and courage. In the Wild West display there have been retained a number of popular and historic pictures. Among them is the great spectacular production of the Massacre of General Custer, and his brave band of troopers from the Seventh Cavalry at the hands of the fierce Sioux Indians at the Little Big horn.

Other views of life on the frontier are riding of untamable bucking bronchos by the indomitable cowboys; the attack on a stage coach, and repulse of the Indians, the hanging of a horse thief, the cowboy and cowgirl quadrille, pony express riding and lariat throwing.

PETER NEUSES WAS HURT AT MADISON

Dragged for Half a Block in a Buggy—Unconscious for Some Time—Has Recovered.

Peter Neuses met with an accident while at Madison with the Grocer's excursion of which he still bears the marks. He has, however, not been kept from his place of business.

He was riding in the back of a buggy, standing up, and had turned around. The buggy struck a broken culvert, and the shock threw Mr. Neuses from his place. His head struck the pavement with such force that he was rendered unconscious. His feet remained in this position for half a block. He was still in a dazed condition when he left Madison for this city but has nearly recovered from his unfortunate experience.

IS IT NATURAL PHOTOGRAPHY?

Will Wright Brought Some Rocks From Bad Land Which Excite Great Comment

For the past week, wondering persons have looked over a collection of stones in the office of Dr. C. T. Pierce. They are part of a number of mineral specimens which Will Wright, brought back with him from the bad lands. Most of them are of ordinary appearance of rocks containing lead and silver ore or quartz, but two specimens have set most of the spectators guessing.

On these rocks are faithfully outlined the shapes of trees, the minutest details of tracery standing out, visible without the aid of the microscope. Dr. Pierce wants to know what caused these miniature likenesses which stand out like paintings on the rock.

"Nature Photography" says Wright. "The stone has received the likeness of trees which stood near it, and has reproduced them as faithfully as a photographic plate."

SEVERAL HUNDRED VISIT MILWAUKEE

Sunday Excursion on the St. Paul Road Attracts Many Janesville Citizens.

A train load of five hundred people representing the excursion of the Federated Trades' Council of Janesville went to Milwaukee yesterday over the St. Paul road. They arrived in Milwaukee shortly after ten o'clock, and were met by a local reception committee and escorted to Welngarts hall on Fourth street where the members registered. In the afternoon great numbers attended the picnic, at Schitz park, took part in the festivities and listened to the speaking. The train returned at nine o'clock, and brought a merry but tired crowd.

"Pop" Anson Says Major League Managers Can Be Improved on In Some Instances. The Davis Case. Quaker Diamond Gossip.

Adrian C. Anson, generally called "Pop," was one of the best known ball players in the country in his day, and in spite of the fact that he retired from the game many years ago he still likes to feel that he has something important to say concerning the great sport that made him famous. Anson recently visited Cincinnati, and the "fans," who, by the way, think he is the "real, real thing," gathered around him in droves to gather up the pearls of wisdom which ever and anon "Pop" lets drop from his lips.

Anson was coaxed into expressing his opinion on certain features of the game as played today, and he began by handing out his compliments to the rank and file of the managers now piloting the careers of the major league teams over the stormy and many times hurricane swept baseball sea.

Anson stated that according to his idea there were several teams in the major organizations, particularly the National, that were in sore need of a change in management, just as some of us poor, overworked, half starved folks are in need of a change of air, diet and, sad to relate, income. After lighting a fragrant perfecto, "Pop" said:

"I could name two or three teams right now that would be much better off if they had different men to look after the players, and I do not think that it would be such a hard matter to get the right men in their places. I do not wish it understood that I am knocking anybody, but simply stating what is the truth.

"And what applies to the National league teams is largely true of those of the American. Have I any idea of getting back into baseball as a manager again? Emphatically no, although the opportunities are not wanting.

"Since I retired from the management of the Chicago team I have had offers every season to take charge of teams, usually in minor leagues, but I have refrained from going into the game again, preferring to look after my business in Chicago, which keeps me busy and allows me more peace than I could possibly have as a manager.

"I feel certain that the only way in which I ever shall be connected with baseball again will be as a stockholder in some new club that is organized to rival a twelve club league. As a player or manager I am out of the race."

vis to play with the New York Nationals. Naturally Pulliam insists that his action was justified, and it is probable that the pros and cons of the question will not be thoroughly sifted until the coming of the millennium. Concerning the Davis case, Francis C. McTeer, the well known Philadelphia authority, says:

"The baseball politicians are again occupying the center of the stage. Scarcely has the consolidation scare died out when another incident arises to disturb the baseball world. In giving the New York club permission to employ George Davis, the player awarded to Chicago by the peace treaty, on claim of a technical violation of that treaty by two American league clubs, President Pulliam caused a renewal of strained relations between the two major leagues and paved the way for a resumption of ruinous hostilities.

"Acting upon President Pulliam's advice the New York club committed the overt act, and it has remained for the National league to endorse or disapprove President Pulliam's course. Either decision will inevitably entail renewed discord within the recently tolerably harmonious organization. Where there was but one dissatisfied club there will henceforth be several disgruntled and distrustful clubs."

Harry Wolverton, the star third baseman of the Philadelphia Nationals, may well be said to be one of the most valuable players of "Chief" Charlie Zimmer's staff of green diamond artists. He has been out of the game for short periods several times this season, and his absence was directly responsible for the loss of four or five games. Harry is very popular with the "fans," but sometimes his temper gets the best of him, and then there is trouble in store for some one.

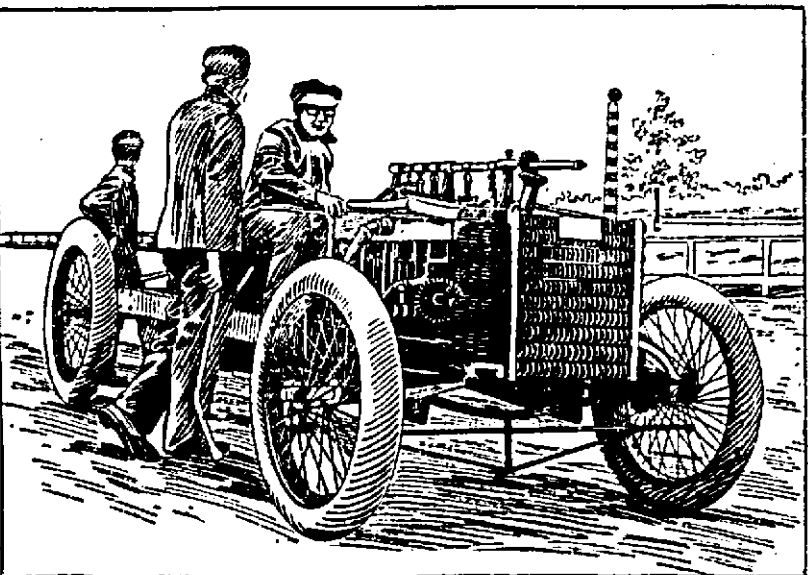

Wolverton is now back in the game, covering the third sack with his characteristic dash and accuracy, and perhaps he will be a factor in starting the sudden brace the Phillies are in need of if they wish to finish the season within striking distance of the top of the ladder.

Chief Zimmer, it is reported, has not given entire satisfaction to the new owners of the Phillies. There are rumors in the air to the effect that the former president of the Players' Protective association will be deposed as captain next year, but that he will be given an opportunity to remain on the catching staff of the Phillies if he so desires. However, rumors are only rumors. Charlie knows the game as do few others, and the management of the Quakers will go a long distance before they will find so able a man.

A BURKETT STORY.

Hart Tells How He Once Gave Jesse a Scare.

"Wonder if any of the 'fans' remember Jesse Burkett when he was a slim pitcher?" asked Charlie Hart as he watched the Chicago Americans defeat the St. Louis Americans in the Windy City recently.

"I caught Burkett way back in 1888, when we were working for Tom Loftus in Omaha. Loftus used to pay us off in good stories, now and then working the 'wait until I cash this check' game on us and helping us out with 50 cents and a few postage stamps. Burkett had a world of speed. I used to let him do his own signaling except in rare cases—when we were in a tight hole and he seemed to be up in the air.

"Once I frightened Jesse so badly that long after he got big and strong he feared I would get ferocious and turn on him. Big Morrissey was at bat. Morrissey in those days was a regular Brothers with the stick. He liked best the low, wide ones and often straightened 'em out for four batters.

"Three men were on bases and only one was out. Burkett began to float 'em up low for Morrissey. The batter reached for one and sent it about a furlong just outside first base. Luckily it was foul. While the boys were chasing the ball I walked out and gave Burkett the awfulest tongue lashing he ever got and drilled it into him that high ones would let Morrissey in a knot. After that it was easy to back-stop Burkett."

Oldfield Challenged by Fournier • The Recent International Contest

One of the most talked about automobilists in America of late has been Barney Oldfield of Detroit, who recently defeated Charles Ridgway in a match race at the Empire City track, New York, for the five mile championship of the United States. In defeating Ridgway Oldfield showed that he has the nerve and daring to drive an automobile to the full limit of its power, and his performance was made all the more notable by reason of the fact that during the early part of the race he lowered by several seconds the world's record for a mile on a circular track.

Oldfield has been challenged by Henry Fournier, the famous French auto demon, to ride a match race for the championship of America. Oldfield has accepted Fournier's def, and the contest will probably take place on the Empire City track early in August.

Oldfield will race on the aforementioned track July 25, and it is possible that he will succeed in lowering another record or two.

"Upon seeing a motor do not attempt to cross the road. If you do you'll be dead before you get to the other side."

This warning, distributed in quantities to the peasantry living in the vicinity of the course of the recent Gordon Bennett International Automobile cup race, coupled perhaps with the efforts of the police and other guardians of the road, prevented any of those fatalities which, judging by the tone of the comments of some of the foreign papers, were regarded as inseparable from the contest in Ireland. The foreign man in the street after reading an account of the contest had a quiet fling at the alarmist expectations aroused by some writers when he said: "Call that a motor race? Nonsense. Nobody was killed."

All the same, there was a feeling of real relief when the race was over and it was seen that Mr. Jarrott's broken collar bone and a child run over and a litter of smashed cars were the worst that had happened.

A leading London daily paper says: "Now that the race is over, we hope all automobilists will see that this contest must be the last of its kind. In the future if races of this sort are to be persisted in they must be run upon special-

MOB KILLS THREE IN WYOMING JAIL

RANGE FEUD BECOMES SERIOUS

Trouble Between Sheepmen and Cattle Raisers Plunges Portion of the State into Condition of Lawlessness—Sheriff Asks for Militia.

Red Lodge, Mont., July 20.—Three lives were sacrificed to mob violence at Basin, Wyo. Two prisoners, being held for murder, and a deputy sheriff, were shot to death.

A state of lawlessness prevails in northern Wyoming, and all semblance of order seems to have been abolished as the result of a range feud. A sheep herder has been killed and a call has been made for militia. Many of the settlers are arming, and a desperate outbreak is feared.

Jim Gorman, who killed his brother about a year ago and ran off with his brother's wife, and a man named Walters, who killed a widow named Hoover at the Hot Springs two years ago, because she refused to marry him, were the victims at Basin. C. E. Pierce, a deputy sheriff, was killed during the attack on the jail.

Appeals to Governor.

From President Moffett of the Montana and Wyoming Telephone company, who is now making a tour of inspection, comes the news of the lynching and of an appeal for help from Sheriff Fenton of Big Horn county, who has arrested a number of prominent cattle men near Thermopolis, and has appealed to the governor of Wyoming for assistance of the militia in getting his prisoners to Basin.

It was reported to Sheriff Fenton last Wednesday morning that a mob was coming up to Basin from Hlatsville and Tonsilp for the purpose of lynching Gorman and Walters. As a measure of precaution, the sheriff took these men and a horse thief out of the jail and secreted them in a gulley near town under guard of Deputy Sheriffs Felix Alston and C. E. Pierce.

Prisoner Escapes. Gorman managed to slip his handcuffs and make his escape. He swam the Big Horn river, an unprecedented feat, and made for the mountains. A posse of seven men quickly organized and Gorman was recaptured early Saturday morning about fifty miles from Basin.

Early Sunday morning a mob of about fifty unmasked men rode up the east bank of the Big Horn and compelled the ferryman to carry them across the river. They made no demonstration until they entered Basin, when five shots were fired as a warning.

The mob proceeded at once to the county jail and fired a volley into the jail. Deputy Pierce and Special Deputy Meade were guarding the prisoners at the time.

Mob in Action.

One bullet grazed Meade's shoulder and entered Pierce's heart. Members of the mob then tore up the telephone poles and battered down the jail doors. They first came to Walters, who was crouched in his cell pleading for mercy. No needless torture was resorted to. Walters was shot instantly.

The mob next found Gorman, whose body was pierced by five bullets and was left presumably dead. He lingered, however, until Sunday afternoon.

A still more alarming state of affairs is reported from the vicinity of Thermopolis. About six weeks ago, as a result of the range feud that has been so bitterly waged, a sheep man, Ben Minick, was killed by cattlemen. The sheriff, it is asserted, has captured the murderers, who are all prominent cattlemen, and whose names have been withheld owing to threats made against him.

Trouble Threatens.

Sheriff Fenton is unable to get his prisoners to Basin. It is said the same mob that lynched Gorman and Walters are sympathizers, and have declared that Sheriff Fenton will never get out of the locality alive with his prisoners. Sheriff Fenton has wired the governor of Wyoming for permission to use the state militia at Lander, and also has sent a telephone message to Basin and other towns asking for volunteers to assist him in upholding the law.

Everywhere hardy Westerners are responding to the call, arming themselves and hastening toward Thermopolis. It is probable the militia will be ordered to the scene, and a bloody battle may be fought. The country about Thermopolis is a wild and lawless one.

WEDDING DRESS IS HER SHROUD

Funeral Splendor Takes Place of Bells in Indiana Town.

Greenfield, Ind., July 20.—Alice Smith, aged 20 years, who was seriously burned at her home, northwest of Geni, is dead. She was heating water in an iron kettle in the yard, when her apron caught fire and she was enveloped in flames. She was about to be married to Ephraim Jeffries. The funeral took place at the Amity church and the remains were buried in the wedding dress.

Sure as Fate.

Wantanno—I wonder if Gabsky will rectify for me at my little party this evening? Duzno—He will unless you know some as yet undiscovered way to prevent him.—Baltimore American.

FOREIGN COMMERCE

The foreign commerce of the United States in the fiscal year just ended is larger than in any preceding year in its history. The total imports and exports as shown by the Department of Commerce through its Bureau of Statistics, is for the year 1903, $2,445,610,417 against $2,310,937,156 in the year 1902, which was considered the banner year prior to 1903. Imports are larger than in any preceding year save in the exceptional 1901. The imports for the first time crossed the billion dollar line, the total being $1,025,619,127 and the exports for the second time crossed the 1400 million line, being $1,419,991,290 or practically 1420 millions. The single year in which the value of exports exceeded those of 1903 is the fiscal year 1901 when the total was $1,487,764,991. The imports exceeded those of 1893 by about 572 million dollars. The imports therefore have increased 18.4 percent, during the decade and exports have increased 67.5 per cent during the same period.

Comparing the figures of 1903 with those at decennial periods at earlier dates, it may be said that the imports of 1853 were 263 millions, those for 1863, 243 millions; for 1873, 642 millions; for 1883, 723 millions, for 1893, 866 millions and for 1903 1025 millions. The exports of 1853 were 203 millions, those for 1863, 204 millions; for 1873, 522 millions; for 1883, 823 millions; for 1893, 847 millions, and those for 1903 were within a fraction of 1420 millions.

The imports of 1903, therefore, are less than four times those of 1853, while the exports for 1903 are practically seven times those of 1853. The growth in importation, which is the most striking characteristic of the years' commerce, is very largely in materials for use in manufacturing. Only eleven months figures are yet available in such detailed form as to show the increase in great groups, but the figures of the eleven months ending with May show that articles in a crude condition for use in manufacturing increased 62 million dollars or about 20 per cent as compared with the corresponding months of last year; articles partially manufactured for use in manufacturing increased 4 million dollars or about 5 per cent, articles manufactured and ready for consumption, increased 18 million dollars or about 13 per cent and articles of voluntary use, luxuries, etc., increased 14 million dollars or about 12 per cent, while articles of food and live animals increased 15 million dollars, or about 8 per cent.

PRESS COMMENT

Washington Star: Reduced to a plain statement, Mr. Cleveland's position seemed to be that he will be a candidate if permitted.

Chicago Record Herald: King Peter has just had a birthday. We would strongly advise him to have as many of them as possible at his earliest convenience.

Chicago News: By the way, considering the President's frequent allusions to "race suicide" has that war department order forbidding the marriage of young officers been rescinded yet?

Chicago Inter Ocean: If the public is disinclined to take an interest in the latest strike news, it must be because it wants a change.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Every time a man eats he has to masticate insalvate, chymify, chylyfy and sanguify. No wonder his system is out of order so often.

Sioux City-Journal: Harmony, of course, the Kansas City platform democrats do not object to, but when it comes to party policy, that's different.

Chicago Chronicle: It is said that the new substance radium produces metal hallucinations. Very likely, therefore, Col. Bryan has inadvertently swallowed a pound or so of radium.

Butte (Mont.) Inter-Mountain: This is the only nation on earth which utilizes giant powder and dynamite as playthings for children.

Chicago Record Herald: President Hall of Clark University says there is something the matter with the man who is forty and still unmarried. Now will the bachelors line up and get their licenses?

Philadelphia Inquirer: The French legislature adjourned "without excitement the most important work of the session having been previously completed." This reminds you of congress because it is so different.

Denver Post: The Kentucky feudists who are languishing in prison, are allowed only a pint of whiskey each day. This is perhaps a greater punishment than will be inflicted upon them after conviction.

Punch: France has not a high opinion of her own sailors. To ascertain whether it is possible to occupy the lower turret while firing is proceeding on the battleship Henry IV four sheep were tied up to represent the French gunners.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Now comes Gov. Dublin of Indiana with an official declaration that "no grounds should be given for the suspicion that even a guilty man has been railroaded to the gallows to satisfy public sentiment." Why not, pray?

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: A New Yorker has entered a complaint with the superintendent of the buildings, because a neighbor painted his house red. In some places they let a fellow paint the whole town vermilion and never say a word. The New York man, who enters a protest on this score, is evidently too particular.

Laurel Leader: Kansas Farmers had better not rely on Wisconsin this year for harvest hands. This state is short itself, and would be glad to get a supply from Kansas or any other place that has heaps to spare.

Hurley Republican from county is probably the best hunting grounds in Wisconsin, and it is well known that the game laws are more or less violated there. Yet we have not heard of an iron county man being appointed a game warden. Iron is a stalwart county, and a La Follette less article, except in protection of game, which duty is presumably only a side issue.

WANTS TO KILL A. E. SHUMWAY

FOILED IN ATTEMPT, DAVID GRAY
SLASHES THROAT

HE WAS SENT TO MENDOTA

In a Fit of Insanity, Caused by Land
Troubles, He Tries To End
His Life.

David L. Gray yesterday cut his throat for a distance of eight inches and stabbed himself three or four times over the heart with a pen-knife in an ineffectual effort to end his life. His action was the result of a fit of insanity, brought on by land difficulties and by morbid religious views. He was yesterday taken to Mendota, after a special examination before Judge Sale.

Escaped Fatal Wounds
The attempt to end his life was made at the home of ex-supervisor, W. H. Gray, eight miles northwest of this city, at between three and four o'clock Sunday morning. Sheriff Appleby and Turnkey Graves were summoned and brought him to this city where Dr. Buckmaster and Mills pronounced him insane. They gave their testimony before Judge Sale, who ordered Gray committed to Mendota.

Threatens Shumway
On the previous day, Gray went to the home of A. E. Shumway, and threatened to kill him. He was balked by the failure of his revolver to explode. The Sheriff was notified, but it was thought that by removing Gray to his cousin's, W. H. Gray, there would be no further difficulty.

MAY STARR DIED THIS MORNING

Daughter of County Clerk Succumbs to Long Siege of Illness—
Had Many Friends.

May, the only child of County Clerk, Frank P. Starr, died this morning at three o'clock. For two years she had fought a losing battle against the inroads of consumption. One year was spent in Colorado, but without benefit. The end was not unexpected, although none the less painful to her friends for that reason.

She was born in the Town of Avon April 5, 1882. Her education was received at Afton and Beloit. With her parents she moved to this city, in 1898 when her father was elected to the county clerkship. For some months she acted as county clerk, gaining many friends among the visitors at that office. She was a member of America Rebekah Lodge, No. 26.

The funeral will be held at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon from the home, 253 Court street, and will undoubtedly be largely attended by a host of friends and relatives from all parts of the county. The remains will be laid to rest at Oak Hill.

BUSINESS MEN MEET TONIGHT

The M. D. Wells Shoe Company Proposition Will Be Discussed.

This evening a special meeting of the Business Men's association has been called. The question to be discussed is the one regarding the possibility of the Wells Shoe company locating here. The proposition before the association is a large one, and should be successfully carried to an issue. It would mean great things for the industrial world of Janesville. Thus far, the matter has been in the hands of C. S. Jackson and all communication has been with him. It is within the possibility of things that enough funds can be secured to make the Wells company an offer and situated at Janesville, adjacent to Chicago, and with direct lines in all four points of the compass, good water, good air and good healthful climate it might be seriously considered by the shoe company in choosing their location. It would mean that eight hundred more workers would be employed in the city and that from one hundred and seventy-five to two hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars would be in the city in circulation each year. With this matter up for discussion, a full meeting of the association is requested and it is hoped all interested in the matter will be present to hear the plans fully discussed.

The Janesville ball sluggers came within an ace of shutting out the Milton Maroons yesterday and did it so neatly that they covered themselves with glory. When the smoke had cleared away, the score stood eight to one in favor of the locals. The match was played at Charley Bluffs, Koshkonong. The locals went at the ball with their sleeves rolled up and took about a dozen falls out of both Hinkley and Crandall, who, twirled for the opposition.

FIRST VICTIM OF THE RIVER

J. A. VERMILYA DROWNED THIS AFTERNOON.

WENT IN BEYOND HIS DEPTH

Was With H. Bennett—Neither Could Swim—Body Has Not Been Recovered.

J. A. Vermilya, twenty years of age, was drowned in the river, at about two thirty this afternoon. He was in the company of H. Bennett, neither of whom could swim. Vermilya waded out two or three rods, where he got beyond his depth.

Was Telegraph Operator
Bennett, who is foreman in the printing office of the Rock County Banner, published at Clinton, and Vermilya, who is a telegraph operator in the employ of the North-Western road at Harvard and was formerly located at the tower in the North-Western yards here, took a boat and went up the river.

Could Not Swim
They asked some youngsters where the water was shallow, and being pointed out the sandbar near the upper ice house, proceeded to divest themselves of their clothing. Vermilya went out beyond his depth and, being unable to swim, could not regain his footing. Search is being made for the body which has not yet been recovered.

BIG DAY AT THE SINNISSIPPI LINKS

Golfers Will Carry Out Red Letter
Calendar—Richardson Finals—
Bachelors vs. Benedicts.

Two of the biggest events of the golf year occur at the Sinissippi links tomorrow afternoon. The finals for the Richardson medal will be played off to determine whether Leo Brownell or C. C. McLean shall hold the trophy for the coming year. Brownell seems to be the favorite in the money, but McLean has a handicap which will tend to equalize the contest. He has a stroke on No. 9 on each round. The annual contest between the bachelors and the bachelors will also be pulled off tomorrow afternoon. To live the competition the losers will be forced to furnish the club with three sand boxes complete with ball cleaning apparatus. An approaching autumn putting contest for prizes in which ladies only will compete is also programmed. There will be no social features in the evening, a efforts in that direction being reserved for Saturday, when the Edgewater club of Chicago will play in this city.

The FAIR

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

ROBERT ROBLIN AND WIFE WERE CAUGHT IN WHIRLPOOL.

VENTURED TOO NEAR THE DAM

They Were Rowing Below the Dam, and Came to Grief Near Ford
Mill—Many Helped Rescue.

The swollen waters of Rock River attempted to claim two more victims Saturday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roblin were in a row boat below the Ford mill dam and were caught in an eddy which over turned their boat. They were rescued with little difficulty.

Many Rush To Help
At best the river is a dangerous place at present. Mr. and Mrs. Roblin ventured very near to the dam, rowing up on the west side of the river. As they reached a point near the Ford mill the light craft was caught in a whirlpool of water and in an instant was floating keel up. Its occupants clung to the boat, while others hastened to bring help.

Caught in Willows
The overturned boat, with its occupants of a minute before, holding on the sides, drifted under the willows just below the Ford mill, where they released their grasp on the boat and clung to the overhanging branches.

By this time men at both fire stations. Ben Barriago and James McGinley of the East station were rowing toward the spot in the boat which Mr. Barriago had used in rescuing James Casey the day before, while the West side firemen had brought ropes.

Switchmen to the Rescue
That it was the St. Paul switching crew to whom the honor of the rescue belonged. They threw a rope out to Mr. Roblin who had attached to his wife, and after she had been drawn to shore, to himself. Barriago and McGinley captured the fugitive boat and oars.

Mr. Roblin is a cutter at the Basset and Echlin saddlery, and came to this city about three weeks ago. He lives at the home of Mrs. Mary Wright on South Main street.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, July 20.—Our dispatches today state that Bragg is retreating into Georgia and Gen. Rosecrans is pursuing. The advance of the latter is reported at Rome, sixty miles south of Chattanooga.

Charleston is not yet taken. There has been severe fighting on Morris Island. Cummings Point was carried by our forces and retaken by the enemy. It is said that the walls of Fort Sumpter have been breached.

John Morgan's force of guerrillas have been routed in Southern Ohio, and a thousand of his men and six pieces of artillery have been captured. He is surrounded and cannot escape.

A New Orleans letter says it is rumored that Admiral Porter will assume command of the Mississippi. Admiral Farragut will go outside and commence operations in another quarter against the enemy.

GRAND RALLY OF EPWORTH LEAGUE INSIST THAT CHRIST IS KING

Speaker Voices Sentiment of the Vast Body of Christians When He Declares for Full Belief in Jesus the Lord.

Detroit, Mich., July 20.—With seven meetings Sunday night, all splendidly attended, the sixth international convention of the Epworth league, which Dr. J. F. Sperry and other officers of the league say has been the greatest and most successful in the league's history, came to a close.

Denver was decided upon for the next convention.

The same program was followed at all of the meetings Sunday night. Addresses were made on three subjects, "Christ Our King," "His Conquering Kingdom," and "My Place in the Army."

The official resolutions of the convention were also adopted by each meeting. They were, after a general prelude, in part as follows:

To Evangelize the World.

"To remain ignorant or indifferent to the cause of missions is to sin against light and to ignore the will of God. We, a part of Christ's great army, place at his instant disposal our means, our service and ourselves, that the world may be evangelized in our generation."

"The gigantic iniquity of the Anglo-Saxon race is a fostering of the monstrous traffic in intoxicants. We believe the complete disenfranchisement of the business will abolish dangers that threaten us and clear up problems that perplex us."

"This whole evil organization is a fountain of iniquity whose streams poison wherever they flow. It has no redeeming feature. It is an environment of perdition, hence we set our faces against this enemy of God, and will give it no quarter in social life, in politics—in fact, nowhere, until it is relegated to its own place."

Sabbath Desecration.

"We regard the Christian Sabbath as the bulwark of defense for our Christian institutions. To desecrate the Sabbath endangers everything of importance to the church of God."

"We are citizens and patriots as well as Christians. Hence we record ourselves as upholders of law and order, always and everywhere, as against all lawlessness and unlawful violence."

The greatest crowd that has congregated in Tent Ontario during the convention was present Sunday night. The 5,000 seats were occupied, and at least 2,000 other persons were standing about the edges of the tent. Dr. J. M. Buckley of New York was the first speaker, discussing "Christ, Our King." He said in part:

Christ is King.

"We cannot affiliate with the Unitarians or anybody that does not recognize Christ as king. If we are right in our belief and assertion of his kingship, they are unwittingly, if honest, blasphemers. If they are right we are idolaters. We must everywhere declare and maintain belief in his deity. I would be willing to receive an honest doubt into the church, but if he dogmatically declares that Christ is God, I would be as willing to receive a Mormon."

One of the finest gatherings of the convention was the men's meeting in Tent Ontario in the afternoon, which was presided over by B. F. Diefendorf of Canajoharie, N. Y. There were 3,500 men present.

Meeting for Little Ones.

More than 1,000 little people attended the children's meeting in the Central M. E. church. The Rev. C. B. Spencer of Kansas City, Mo., presided, and the speakers were: Mrs. Anna E. Smiley of Springfield, Mass.; the Rev. R. J. Treleven of Toronto, Ont., and Miss Mary M. Dennis of Richmond, Ind.

In addition to the three afternoon meetings, "love feasts" were held at 9 a. m. in a dozen churches in different parts of the city. Fifty of the city pulpits were filled at the morning services by various clergymen who are attending the convention.

Bishops Joyce and Galloway presided in the two largest Methodist churches of the city, the Central and the Simpson.

The friends of the members of the Twelfth Wisconsin battery now at Vicksburg, are notified that a box will be packed for the company, at Smith & Dostwick's store on Wednesday next.

Major Brown of the 10th, Kentucky cavalry arrived here yesterday, with one hundred prisoners, captured by his battalion near Abingdon, Virginia. He came out on the party suddenly and was surrounded, when he fought his way out, killing thirty and taking the balance prisoners.

On the morning of the 11th, the 6th Connecticut and the 9th Maine regiments made a furious attack upon the Cummings Point battery, got possession of it and hoisted the American flag at daybreak.

The Herald's Vicksburg letter, dated July 11, says that Gen. Pemberton's paroled army marched out of our lines this forenoon. Only a few stragglers are now in the city.

LAW DECISIONS FOR LAYMEN

Recent Court Rulings That Will Interest the Busy Reader Very Much.

Promise to Answer For Debt of Another

A wholesale liquor dealer refused to furnish more goods to a retailer, who had become largely indebted to him, unless the retailer would become personally responsible for the goods. She said that she was running the business and would be responsible, and thereafter all goods were shipped in her name, but were sold by the husband, who continued to run the saloon in his own name.

Held, that the wife was not the purchaser of the liquors, but that her agreement to pay for them was merely an oral promise to answer for the debt of her husband, void under the statute of frauds. 67 Northeastern Rep. 520.

Railroads—Assault on Passenger

Where a conductor on a train attempts to enforce a rule of the company by requiring payment of additional fare by a passenger without a ticket, and the passenger uses force against the conductor and invites personal collision with him, he cannot sue the company or the conductor for damages for assault and battery. The fact that he was unable to purchase a ticket, because of the absence of a ticket agent at the station, is no excuse for the resistance by the passenger of the conductor's attempt to collect additional fare. 67 Northeastern rep. (New York, Judge O'Brien.) 569.

Separation of White and Colored Passengers

The Supreme court of Louisiana holds in the recent case of State vs. Pearson, that it was competent for the general assembly of that state to require street railway companies in case of their neglect of their legal duties. 34 Southern Rep. (Louisiana, Judge Blanchard) 575.

Breach of Marriage Promise

Where a man who has entered into a contract to marry with a woman discontinues his attentions and informs her that he will not marry her, she is not obliged to again offer herself to him in marriage in order to maintain an action for breach of promise. 74 Southwestern Rep. (Missouri, Judge Vallant) 1024.

Right of Widow to Remove Remains of Husband

In the case of Smith vs. Shepherd, it was held that the widow who buried the remains of her husband, in a burial plot belonging to his sister, with the consent of the latter, and who prepared the grave for the reception of her own remains with like consent knowing that the said plot was so occupied, that no consent would be given for other interments therein. It was not entitled to require the owner of the plot to permit her to remove the remains merely because his children by a former wife, also buried there, and his children by her cannot be buried there. 54 Atlantic Rep. (New Jersey) 806.

An Invidious Distinction

In the recent case of Weeks vs. Wilmington, etc., R. Co., a decision, handed down by the Supreme court of North Carolina, are the words: "Plaintiff, who was a lady, and two female companions were walking on the track of defendant company." Was the writer of the paragraph, drawing on his personal knowledge, of the parties? Or were the "companions" tabby-cats or muley-cows? (Law Notes for July.)

SCENES IN THE STREETS OF CONSTANTINOPLE.

No City in the World Has a More Beautiful Appearance from a Distance—Stately Mosques That Crown the Hills of Stamboul.

(Special Correspondence.)

No city on the face of the globe has so wonderful or beautiful an entrance as that through which one approaches Constantinople from the Mediterranean. All the charms and loveliness of sky and sea, mountain forms, islands and verdure of indented coasts are gradually disclosed in this enchanting passage with an opulence and splendor of natural beauty impossible to describe.

Crossing the Aegean sea, then through the Hellespont into the sea of Marmora, this glorious panorama is but the fitting introduction to the entrancing vision of Constantinople, as it rises from the waters, rich in coloring and contours. Its seven hills marked by gleaming minarets and domes, and the deep greens of its cypresses and pines and palms contrasting sharply with the varied tints of its crumbling walls and fortifications.

Calques without number flit in and out among the huge ships of all nations that lie about the broad roadstead, warships and freighters, P. and O. steamers bound for India and the remotest east, German vessels that later will seek African ports on the east coast, corn ships from Russia, sturdy looking merchantmen from America, picturesque feluccas from Greece, and the Ionian islands, and the yachts of millionaires and princes.

It is wise, but very difficult, from sheer eagerness, to behold the wonders of Constantinople at close range, to remain upon the steamer deck for half a day to fix in the mind a comprehensive idea of the city and its environs, all of which, in their chief features, are presented to the eye as a well-defined picture, apart from the perplexities of narrow streets and byways through which the various attractions are reached.

Upon the hills of Stamboul stand the great mosques, their ivory-white minarets gleaming in the sunlight of clear day, or gilded, or reddened, to columns of gold or blood in the setting glow of the sun. Long processions of cypresses and clusters of palm and Oriental shrubberies mark the streets and gardens.

St. Sophia, with four white minarets and rose-colored walls rising in successive breaks to the vast dome that surmounts the wonderful pile of masonry; Sultan Ahmed, with its six slender towers; ten-domed Soliman the Great; Mohammed II., built above the ruins of the Church of the Holy Apostles, the burial place of the Crusader emperors; the mosque of Selim; the half-ruined seraglio of Tekyr, and, high above all, the tower of Setaski-arat—these are the dominating landmarks of Stamboul, but about and around them cluster a multitude of less impressive edifices, though not less interesting and essential parts of the whole, mosques, tombs, seraglios, minarets and kiosks glowing in varied hues, rich in pictorial beauty, while from their gardens and streets and balconies the green masses of trees and shrubs and flowering vines show in contrast to the walls.

Northward the Bosphorus winds to the Black sea between palaces and mosques, cafes and gardens, villages and vineyards. All the magic of the east is here profusely showered upon the shores of the broad and placid Bosphorus. The curve of the Golden Horn as it reaches into the sweet waters; the Sea of Marmora, dotted with bold, rocky islands; the huge bulk of the Olympus, the softly tinted sky and sea—all are but expressions of nature at her loveliest, and form an unforgettable and soul-stirring picture.

Constantinople is so diverse in its life and its component parts—for Pera and Scutari are essentially a part of the whole—that it is difficult to know where to begin in giving any idea of the city.

If, instead of having come to Constantinople by sea, and thus had one's first impression a comprehensive and brilliant memory of this wonderful harbor and city, the traveler has arrived by the Orient express from Paris or Vienna, he is set down at the Castle of the Seven Towers, which is the railway station in the midst of the most bewildering human turmoil that can be conceived.

Yet, in the after days of sight-seeing, this varied human multitude, composed of all races and religions, all degrees of wealth and poverty, attired in every kind of garment by which nationalities may be distinguished, is one of the principal fascinations of Constantinople. It comes to one after a few days that it is not the particular individual, be he Arab, Jew, Turk, Syrian, negro, Greek or European, that interests him, but the tout ensemble, the contrast, strong and dramatic, of utterly different races and types brought into a single picture and a single impression.

The Arab—you remember him in Byron's poems—will he yell "Glour!" If his eyes fall upon you? Oh, no. He is too proud for that, even if he cared to insult you. The Jew—a veritable Shylock in dress and manner, to be sure—but he uses a typewriter in his well-kept business house. The Turk—he speaks English almost as well as you do, perhaps, and, with a manner that is beautiful to see, dines you, and tells over the black coffee the wild stories of earlier days, when the Janissaries were slaughtered in the streets of Constantinople.

At Scutari you may witness the great spectacle of the departure of the Turkish Woman in Soudair, pilgrimage to Mecca, and here is the wonderfully beautiful cemetery—the City of the Dead—where, among the tombs and cypress groves, the living hold their holidays and picnic parties. From here one takes the train to visit the ancient Broussa, and among the little streets pass dark-eyed and often beautiful Jewesses, or Turkish ladies, richly, but rather quietly dressed, wearing the flimsiest of yashmaks, if they happen to be pretty, and rather thick ones if they are plain of face or old.

The limits of this article do not permit of any description of the thousand interesting sights and places and people with which the city allures the stranger. They are, literally, too numerous to mention. Perhaps one of Constantinople's greatest and most fascinating attractions is the grand bazaar, called Begezin, for here weeks and weeks of observation would not exhaust the novelties or interest of the immense display of Oriental manufactures.

In the bazaar of perfumes one is made dizzy with the atmosphere of odorous mixtures, for here are gathered all the exquisite and delicate fragrances known to the world. The Orientals are fond of perfumes, and the rarity of some of the scents to be found here makes their price literally above that of rubies. This bazaar is much frequented by the Turkish women, and, if one cares to know how their mouths and chins and usually well-shaped noses look, this is the place to come, while their yashmaks are lifted to inhale some special perfume.

The charm of Constantinople is as insidious as the spell of hashish, and Kipling expressed its witchery in words that every traveler in the Orient understands when he wrote:

If you see the East a-cullin'—why, you won't see nothin' else—No, you won't see nothin' else but them spyin' garlic smells, An' the wind among the palm-trees and the thickly temple bells.

Always Filled the House.

The kindly feeling existing between certain theatrical managers is best exemplified by this little complaint, which one of them paid to a brother manager a day or two ago. He had been asked how business was with a certain production.

"It's fine," said he, "there's so much paper in the house you can hear it rustle."

"Mr. Blank has a big circle of friends, and, I guess, he's evening up all his obligations by giving out passes," remarked a bystander.

"Sure," said the manager. "And the best of his free list is that each pass for the seats he gives out is good for a request for two more. He never has any trouble in filling the house."

Played a Safe Engagement.

The story is told of a man who was riding on a train and pretended to become ill after eating a sandwich. The man opened his grip and took out a hot water bag. He got a sympathetic porter to fill the water bag with boiling water, and then he opened his luncheon basket, took out a piece of fried steak and warmed it up on the water bag. Then, after he had warmed the steak, he cut it all up with a pair of scissors and fed it to himself with a pair of sugar tongs, because he would not take a chance with a fork going around a curve. After he had eaten the steak he unscrewed the stopper of the water bag and poured himself out a cup of coffee. He had the grounds in the bag all the time.

INJUNCTION IN LABOR TROUBLE

BERLIN MACHINE WORKS OF BELLOIT TAKE ACTION.

GRANTED BY JUDGE DUNWIDDIE

Circuit Court Document Used as Instrument Against Line City Strikers—Many Affected

Legal proceedings of a sensational character were instituted Saturday, by the Berlin Machine Works, of Beloit against the machinists' union, and all other persons in any way responsible for the strike, or who have tried to prevent men who so desired, from going to work.

Upon application by the Berlin Machine Works Judge B. F. Dunwiddie, of the Circuit court issued a sweeping injunction restraining the members of the union and all other persons, from interfering, intimidating, threatening, coercing, or intimidating any person from entering the employ of the Berlin works. The injunction goes further. It restrains all persons from gathering in or congregating around the Berlin plant or interfering with any member of the family of any person wishing to enter the Berlin's employ. It restrains any effort at boycotting the Berlin, or the distribution of circulars or letters that would injure the Berlin, or the publication even of newspaper articles tending in the same direction.

Injunction Only Temporary
The injunction is temporary in its application, being returnable in twenty days, thus giving the men an opportunity to show cause why the injunction should not be made permanent.

The Berlin company has employed Winkler, Flanders, Smith, Bottom, & Vilas of Milwaukee, as well as Fethers, Jeffris, & Mount, of Janesville.

Appley Served Papers
The first intimation of the legal proceedings was received in Beloit Saturday morning when Sheriff Geo. M. Appley arrived from Janesville and began to serve the papers on the parties named in the court's order. The injunction applies to everybody, whether named in the complaint or not, and failure to obey the order, will result in arrest.

No trouble has been precipitated by the service of the injunction, and the men on picket duty at the Berlin plant dispersed when ordered to do so by Sheriff Appley and Chief of Police Schiebel. The union leaders realized the wisdom of obeying the order of the court, and while feeling runs high, it is probable that there will be no violence attempted.

ing star, and the election of Cardinal Scampani, which bears lighted torches, are indicated by the words.

St. Malachy was an Irish prelate who lived in the twelfth century. He wrote a book which was discovered after his death and which contained a motto for every pontiff from the year 1143 until the end of the papacy. It is declared that these prophecies have been fulfilled in a remarkable manner. He foretold that the successor of Pius IX. would have the symbol of a light in heaven (lumen in celo), and as a matter of fact the eschaton which fell to Cardinal Pecci, who afterward became Pope Leo XIII., had as its chief feature a very luminous star in the sky. Whether the prophecies of St. Malachy will again be verified can be known only when the sacred college of cardinals has elected a successor to Pope Leo.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

The police were called yesterday to New York hospital to quell a fight between the patients, who broke up the furniture and wrecked the room.

A mob attacked the jail at Basin City, Wyo., and killed two murderers and the deputy county clerk who was acting as one of the guards.

A plan to draw electricity from the clouds by means of magnets and wires and store it for commercial purposes is to be tested on Pike's Peak by a Chicagoan.

One man killed and ninety persons injured, four probably fatally in a collision between electric cars near Oberlin, Ohio.

The Epworth League convention at Detroit closed with seven night meetings. Denver was chosen for the next gathering.

Officers raided a Joliet resort run by colored people and arrested thirty-six negro men and women and six white men.

Active preparations are going on at Dublin for the arrival of the British king and queen tomorrow.

Diplomats at Peking think that war between Japan and Russia is near. Mrs. Georgiana Witham of Epping, N. H. died at the age of 105 years and 10 months.

The prohibition of the importation of arms and ammunition into China, as provided by the protocol, expires in August without protest.

Jared D. Smith, United States special agent in charge of the Hawaiian Experiment station at Honolulu, has been successful in his experiments of growing cotton and Sumatra tobacco.

Mrs. Robert J. Drake, who was accused of the murder of her husband, a former Wisconsin man, has been released from the Covington, Ind. jail on giving bonds for her appearance at a second trial is decided upon, the first having resulted in a disagreement.

Dora Wright was hanged at South McAlester, I. T. for the murder of Annie Williams, a 7 year old girl. She mounted the scaffold without a tremor. Charles Barrett was also hanged for the murder of John Hennessy, an aged man, whom he shot from ambush.

NINETY PERSONS HURT IN TROLLEY COLLISION

None of the Occupants of the Cars Escapes Injury When They Meet on a Curve.

Oberlin, Ohio, July 20.—One man killed, four probably fatally hurt and nearly ninety persons injured is the result of a collision on the Cleveland & Southwestern Electric Road between, this city and Elyria. The dead: E. L. Garin, William O'Brien, D. C. Wheelock, F. A. Edmonds, Mary Wilson, Herb Kenoston, motorman on Elyria car.

The car that left here at 6:30 had orders to meet the other car at Elyria, and when rounding a curve near a long iron bridge ran into the west-bound car, completely telescoping it. There were over ninety people in the two cars, none of whom escaped injury.

BLACK MAN CONFESSES TO ASSAULT ON GIRL

Enters House With Intent to Secure Money and Makes Attack When Threat is Made.

Glencoe, Minn., July 20.—Joseph Scott, the negro who assaulted Helen Olson Saturday morning, was safely lodged in jail early Sunday. Scott does not hesitate to admit his guilt. In giving his version of the crime he said:

"I was watching the house nearly all day, and about midnight I entered it. The girls had gone to bed. I knew there was some money in the house, as I had heard them talking about it during the day. I looked through the house, but could not find it. If I had I would not have touched either of them, but when I could not find it I went upstairs and woke them up and told them to get the money quick.

"They got $4 and said that was all they had. I got to talking with them and the pretty one called on the other to get a revolver and shoot me. Then I struck her a couple of times with the ax. I then ran away and that is all there is to it."

FOUND DEAD IN THE KITCHEN

Evidence of Murder in Death of Granville, Wis., Woman.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 20.—Mrs. James Tobin, aged 62, of the town of Granville, was found lying behind the stove in her kitchen with a bullet hole in her head. She had evidently been dead for some time. Her husband says that he had taken a dose of morphine earlier in the day and did not wake up until after 4 o'clock, and then found her lying there. They were alone in the house at the time. Dr. Rahr examined the body and said that the bullet could hardly have been fired by any one outside the house. Tobin is a farmer and among the earliest settlers of the town of Granville and well to do. The woman was his second wife.

PRESIDENT RESTS ON SABBATH

Passes Quiet Day at Home With Two Notable Friends.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., July 20.—President Roosevelt did not attend church Sunday. With President Nicholas Butler of Columbia university and Dr. Lambert, his old family physician and friend, he remained at Sagamore Hill quietly during the day, which, on account of a storm, was disagreeable until evening. Mrs. Roosevelt and the children attended services at Christ Episcopal church.

Busy Pyromaniac.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 20.—The druggist who, in the past month, has caused the fire department to be called out many times at night, started a fire at midnight in Soule's livery stables, which destroyed eighteen of the fifty horses in the building. Two hours later he started another fire in an alley a block away.

Sell Oil Leases.

Dublin, Ind., July 20.—Argue, McKisson & Co. of Toledo, Ohio, have sold to Chicago men leases on 1,600 acres of oil land in Blue Creek, Jefferson and Wabash townships, Adams county, with fifty-three producing wells and a net daily production of 100 barrels.

Girl Is Drowned.

THROUGH ASIA MINOR

BATTLEFIELDS OF ANCIENT HISTORY REVISITED.

Scene of Alexander the Great's Victory Over the Persian Monarch Darius: Two Famous Passes Along the Coast Also Described.

Col. Yanke, a retired German officer, has just read a lecture before the members of the Berlin Geographical society on the results of a journey last year through Asia Minor, undertaken for the purposes of historical and geographical investigation. The starting point of the journey was Alexandretta, and the route followed was first to Smyrna, then by ship to Rhodes, Messina, and Adana, on the Cilician coast. An excursion to Pompeopolis was made, as well as one from Alexandretta to Ballan and the Ballan pass.

The latter, lying 680 metres above the level of the sea, afforded a beautiful view of the Plain of Antioch and the Kara-su Valley. On returning to the battlefield of Issus, where Alexander the Great defeated Darius, surveys were made, which excited much curiosity among the population.

Two other passes, mentioned by Strabo and Xenophon, were also visited, one forming a defile along the coast. The battlefield of Issus is crossed by two rivers, and the common opinion was that the river which proved disastrous to Darius was the most northerly one. The lecturer regarded this assumption as erroneous, as the river in question had high steep banks. The southern river must, therefore, have been the one which Darius had in his rear. Misled by his scouts as to the movements of the Macedonian army, he committed the same mistake which was so fatal to him at Granicus, drawing up his troops on too limited a ground in front of the river.

The lecturer considered that the estimate of 600,000 men as the strength of the Persian army was excessive, since so large a body of troops could never have had room on the battlefield. The number was probably only 60,000. Alexander, who had recovered from his illness caused by bathing in the Cydnus, more rapidly than his opponent had expected, surprised the Persians in their unfavorable position and defeated them.

From Issus the lecturer continued his journey over the Cilician Gate and the Taurus range to the salt steppes in the interior of the country. The opportunity was taken to survey the course and the valley of the Kokon-su. The valley leads up to the Taurus and forms at the top a level 250 metres in width, encompassed by high rocks, which must have been passed over by armies in ancient times on their marches from the coast to the northwest.

Trips were made from Smyrna to Pergamon, Ephesus, and Troy. At Troy a party of thirty ladies and gentlemen archaeologists, who were visiting the hills of Iliac under the guidance of Prof. Dörpfeld, was met. From this point the neighboring battlefield on the Granicus (Karaboga) was visited. At the spot where Darius suffered his first defeat at the hands of Alexander, the Granicus is only a shallow expanse of water which can be waded without difficulty and which has, doubtless, been often crossed by armies.—Correspondence of London Standard.

HOW TO PRONOUNCE "GOLF."

Scotch Papers Discuss Three Forms of Pronunciation.

In the Scottish newspapers a discussion has been going on recently about the pronunciation of the word "golf." To the ordinary Scotch intelligence the word would not seem to present any difficulty whatever, but from the mists of discussion three forms of pronunciation emerge.

One is what may be called the natural one, with due value given to the "l," the second seems to be favored by the pundits, and it is arrived at by omitting the "l" and saying "goff," but then difficulty arises that if you say "goff" you do not mean "golfer," but a person who is engaged in a flitting or crimping process known as "goffering," thrilly romps in the burly Scot with his style, which is made by changing the "l" into a "w" and saying "gowf."

This was how they used to spell it in the old days, when an act of parliament had to be made to keep the people of Scotland from dissipating their time over what they fondly imagined to be their national game.

But it was really imported from Blackheath in London, and at Blackheath they say "golf," which appears to settle the question.—Country Life.

A Wellington Story.
Wellington's grandniece tells this anecdote of the Iron Duke's sense of justice in the just published volume of his letters: "I forget if it was at Walmer or at Strathfieldsaye that he one evening in the drawing room rang the bell several times, and, no servant answering, he became extremely angry. When at last a footman appeared, the duke stormed, with very strong language, at his neglect of duty. I, a small child, so far from being frightened, thought it exceedingly funny to see the duke angry and went into fits of laughter. This checked him, and the footman interposed, saying: 'If your grace will look, you will see the bell is broken and never rang at all. I only came in for something else.' The duke examined the bell and then turned to the footman and said: 'Yes, I was wrong. I am very sorry, William; and I beg your pardon.' And then turning to me, added in his gruff voice, 'Always own up when you are in the wrong.'"

Value of Stocks to Egypt.
Wrote it not for the multitude of stocks that hang to Egypt every winter there would be no living in some parts of the country, for, after every inundation, frogs appear in devastating swarms.

Pays Out a Large Sum.
New York, July 20.—The treasury had an unusually heavy debit at the clearing house Friday—$2,216,171—resulting from pension payments, mail transportation and a $500,000 payment to the Hong Kong and Shanghai bank for account of the army in the Philippines.

Celebrate a Golden Wedding.
Galesburg, Ill., July 20.—Mr. and Mrs. A. Jacob celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding in this city Friday. The couple came to Galesburg in 1855 and have since resided here.

Abandons Nile Expedition.
Aden, Arabia, July 20.—The expedition headed by W. N. McMillan of St. Louis, Mo., to explore the Blue Nile has abandoned its task.

AGED MAN MURDERS HIS SON

Divorce Case Inspires Michigan Man to Slay His Offspring.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 20.—Henrik Ten Braak, aged 70 years, shot and fatally wounded his oldest son, Albert, aged 19, and tried to kill his wife, but was prevented by the arrival of officers. Mrs. Ten Braak recently secured a divorce from her husband on account of his intemperate habits and abusive conduct and he claimed that his wife and Albert swore falsely against him.

May Amend Panama Treaty.
Panama, Colombia, July 20.—Information from Bogota says it appears probable that the canal treaty will be ratified, with an amendment making the sum to be paid to Colombia by the United States $25,000,000, instead of $10,000,000, as proposed by the treaty.

Friends Provide Medal.
Some people have the medal craze badly, as is the case in Tivoli, N. Y. J. L. de Pyster of that place raised the Stars and Stripes over Richmond after it fell, and the untold government would not give him a medal of honor for it, as it was claimed that there was no personal risk or danger in the act. The man's friends have had a nice medal made for him, however.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

Bohemian Glass-Blowers.
About 1,000 skilled glass cutters in twenty towns in Bohemia have struck. Work is done by the piece at prices which give the average wage forty-five cents a day. The skill of these famous Bohemian glass cutters depends upon the fact that they are trained to it from the age of six years. Much of the work is done in homes with foot power lathes, and one-third of the artisans are women.

Algebra and Anarchy.
A young peasant in a village in the Russian province of Minsk, who was trying to educate himself, was arrested for being in possession of a book on algebra. The justice of the peace before whom he was brought acquitted him of the charge of conspiracy made against him by the police, but warned him not to buy books which tended to make an anarchist and an infidel of him.

Fear to Gaze on Royalty.
Formerly a Chinaman who gazed upon the Emperor or Empress while they were being carried along the street lost his head. Since the Emperor's return from Singanfu this rule has been revoked, but the populace has not yet mustered its courage, and not long ago, when the imperial party were in Shanghai, the streets were deserted.

Electrical Currents.
It is said by the Electrician that low-tension electrical currents say under 120 volts, are more deadly than those having ten times the voltage. Dr. Bartlett and Prof. Prevost have made the remarkable discovery that high-tension currents are capable of restoring the action of a heart that has been arrested by a low-tension current.

A Record in Nursing.
At the village of Montroix, Puy-de-Dome, France, live two old women, mother and daughter, who have nursed 140 babies without losing a single one. The mother was born in 1807 and the daughter in 1823. The local council has supported an application on their behalf for the Motyon prize, which is awarded to candidates who can give proof of having done specially good service to the human race.

Steel Pens.
Early steel pens were so costly that makers advertised they would make such repairs as were necessary for a stated time, generally six months. When a man damaged his pen he carried it back to the factory and had it mended by an experienced mechanic.

May Be Wreck of Troopship.
It is suggested that the wreck recently discovered in Dublin bay may be that of a troopship which went down in the bay in 1815 with troops returning from Waterloo.

Moss Litter Supplants Straw.
Moss litter taken from the bog lands is coming into use in many European army stables. It costs only half as much as straw.
